Rice English integrates creative and critical practice through training in close reading, analytical writing, cultural history and theory, and craft/form. Our faculty research and pedagogy cover the breadth of the study of British and American literatures and cultures ranging from the medieval era to the present. The curriculum emphasizes literature and literary history, race and ethnicity studies, feminist and gender studies, queer theory and the history of sexuality, visual culture and comparative media studies, and the Anglophone literature of the postcolonial world. Faculty have particular strengths in the newer interdisciplinary areas of medical humanities, ecocriticism, post-humanism, and environmental humanities. Recent research and writing in the public humanities innovates the departmental mission as faculty and students engage new audiences. Rice English is also home to a vibrant creative writing program offering a range of courses in fiction, poetry, creative non-fiction, podcasting, translation, and publishing. At the undergraduate level, the department offers a major in English, as well as a major in English with a major concentration in Creative Writing.

The department also offers two undergraduate minors for students who wish to pursue English as a secondary field outside the major focus of study at Rice: 1) the minor in English, in which students practice the methods, theories, and research practices common to the fields of literary and cultural studies; and 2) the minor in Creative Writing, which emphasizes close reading, creative process, cross-genre training, writing craft, and editorial technique.

The core of graduate study in English is the PhD; the program trains students to develop advanced knowledge of literary, cultural, and critical studies, including: critical reading, thinking, and writing; professional methodologies; literary and cultural histories, and theoretical and interdisciplinary perspectives.

ENGL 113 - INTRODUCTION TO LITERARY EDITING & PUBLISHING

Short Title: INTRO TO LIT EDITING & PUB

Department: English

Grade Mode: Standard Letter

Course Type: Seminar

Credit Hours: 3

Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to Undergraduate, Undergraduate Professional or Visiting Undergraduate level students.

Course Level: Undergraduate Lower-Level

Description: Taught in the fall, Introduction to Literary Editing & Publishing is the first course in a recommended two-part sequence that explores literary publishing and the diversity of professionals in that space: editors, agents, publishers, and writers. Students enrolled in ENGL 113 will consider the fundamental questions of the industry: "What is literature and who decides?", "What is craft?", "What is poetry and what is the utility of a poem?", "What stories are fiction writers allowed to tell?", and "What is creative nonfiction's relationship to truth?" Alongside these discussions, students will study the basic elements of literature's three main genres (poetry, fiction, and creative non-fiction), enlarge their understanding of editorial critique, and develop skills for providing feedback in the workshop setting. Several classes throughout the semester will feature discussions with visiting publishers, editors, agents, poets, essayists, and/or novelists. Students will also be asked to become practitioners of "literary citizenship." This will come about through weekly attendance at staff meetings of The Rice Review, participation in literary events throughout Houston, and through the hands-on experience of planning and hosting The Rice Review's annual Fall Open Mic Night. All students will be considered as official staffers for the magazine and will be acknowledged in that year's annual issue. Course counts toward the English Creative Writing Major Concentration (ECRW). There is no prerequisite for this course, but a joy for reading and debating the qualities of great poetry and prose is strongly encouraged. ENGL 113 is a prerequisite for ENGL 114. For more information about the spring continuation of the course and the production of The Rice Review, please refer to the course description for ENGL 114.

ENGL 114 - LITERARY EDITING & PUBLISHING / THE RICE REVIEWShort Title: LIT EDIT. & PUB. / RICE REVIEWDepartment: EnglishGrade Mode: Standard LetterCourse Type: SeminarCredit Hours: 3Course Level: Undergraduate Lower-LevelPrerequisite(s): ENGL 113

Description: Taught in the Spring, Literary Editing & Publishing/The Rice Review is the second course recommended to students desiring practical skills in the fields of literary editing and publishing. Experiential in nature, this class engages students in the real considerations and hands-on experience of publishing Rice's nationally award-winning undergraduate literary journal, The Rice Review. Enrolled students will participate in weekly editorial meetings to read and discuss the merits of undergraduate submissions across literature's three main genres: poetry, fiction, and creative non-fiction. Students will discuss a diverse group of submissions in the workshop setting, refine their editorial skills through written critiques, and enlarge their understanding of the editing process. Later in the term, students will become proficient with Adobe's InDesign layout software and create final magazine spreads that demonstrate an attention to the interplay of text and image. Students will also be asked to become practitioners of "literary citizenship." This will come about through participation at outside literary events and through the hands-on experience of planning and hosting The Rice Review's Spring Launch Event. All students will be considered official staffers for the magazine and will be acknowledged in that year's annual issue. Course counts towards the English Creative Writing Major Concentration (ECRW) and the Minor in Creative Writing. In order to control course demand, registration is by permission of the instructor. Please reach out to ianschimmel@rice.edu to register or with inquiries. There is no prerequisite for this course, but a joy for reading and debating the qualities of great poetry and prose is strongly encouraged. ENGL 113 is a prerequisite for ENGL 114, or permission from the instructor is required. Instructor Permission Required.

We will explore that fascination in a wide-ranging sample of writing by such authors as Kate Chopin, William Faulkner, Tennessee Williams, Walker Percy, Eudora Welty, John Kennedy Toole, Michael Ondaatje, Sarah Broom, Maurice Carlos Ruffin, Eric Nguyen, and others. We will try to understand some of the many ways in which these writers have used this mysterious, complex, and magnetic place, striving to explain its survival despite and in some cases because of the social, legal, cultural, and environmental storms that have battered it. Our reading will be balanced between texts long ago admitted to the canon of classic American literature (Streetcar Named Desire, A Confederacy of Dunces) and texts that are part of a recent remarkable outburst of creative energy associated with the post-Katrina city (Ruffin's short stories; Sarah Broom's The Yellow House). The food, drink, and music of New Orleans will receive special attention as key parts of the city's cultural fabric. A final paper will ask you to write your own New Orleans: to build a verbal monument from the foundations of these other attempts to capture the city's essence in words.Course URL: english.rice.edu (<http://english.rice.edu>)ENGL 360 - AMERICAN LITERATURE BEFORE THE CIVIL WAR*Short Title: AMER LIT BEFORE THE CIVIL WARDepartment: EnglishGrade Mode: Standard LetterCourse Type: LectureDistribution Group: Distribution Group ICredit Hours: 3Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to Undergraduate, Undergraduate Professional or Visiting Undergraduate level students.Course Level: Undergraduate Upper-LevelDescription: A survey of American literatures spanning the Age of Discovery, Atlantic Revolutions, and onset of the U.S. Civil War.ENGL 361 - US LITERATURE FROM THE CIVIL WAR TO WWI*Short Title: US LITERATURE CIVIL WAR TO WWIDepartment: EnglishGrade Mode: Standard LetterCourse Type: LectureDistribution Group: Distribution Group ICredit Hours: 3Restrictions: Enrollment is limited to Undergraduate, Undergraduate Professional or Visiting Undergraduate level students.Course Level: Undergraduate Upper-LevelDescription: From Mark Twain to T.S.
